THE THINGS WE LOVE,

The sweet, sweet things we love;

The sweet, sweet things we love.

Leaving darkness and pain,

Thou knowest what it means!

Will come the things we love,

Though naught doth whisper when, These dear, sweet things we love.

They'll come more fair and bright,

The growth of cork-oak in California is not a matter of experiment; its success was demonstrated long ago. The may not have accomplished much in "No, no," said he. "I am ready to other parts of the country, but it gave yielding cork and bearing acorns at a number of different places in the State. There are trees growing on Mr. Richardson's place at San Gabriel. There were samples of cork and acorns shown at the Sacramento Citrus Fair by H. A. Messenger, of Calaveras County. There are trees of similar age in Sonoma, Santa Barbara and Tulare, and perhaps other counties. The State University is growing seedlings from California cork acorns, and will be likely to have the trees for distribution next year. There is no doubt about the adaptation separated places named above all furnish proper conditions for its growth. It is of course a crop of which one has to wait some time to gather, and therefore needs patience in the planter. All the cork-wood of commerce > comes from the Spanish Peninsula, where the trees abound, not only in cultivated forests, but also grow wild on the mountains. The tree is like an American oak, with leaves similar to the oak, and acorns. It takes ten years for the bark to become a proper thickness to be manufactured into bottle-stoppers, life-preservers and seine-corks. When stripped from the cured in the sun for a week and pressed into flat pieces for baling and shipping. The denuded trunk, like a hen robbed of her eggs, does not sulk and quit the business, but throws out a fresh covering for a fresh spoliation. One tree
